- 13) Multi-year Projects or Investments, Discuss FY21 Ramp-up or Wind-down in Spending, and Future Year Plan -
- CRM System: This is an Information Technology solution and it is intended to improve the DYEE clients experience with various youth programs. The implementation has spread over multiple years, however, DYEE is committed to the implementation given the critical needs for the Youth Employment program and other DYEE efforts.

13) Multi-year Projects or Investments (Continued) -

- DYEE SuccessLink Grant: Over the past 3-4 years, DYEE has held exploratory conversations about transitioning a component of the SuccessLink Employment Program to a grant partnership funded initiative. This model would essentially decentralize the summer jobs operations from being solely reliant on the city's hiring process. This would provide youth jobs grant funding to organizations where organizations would manage the recruitment, selection, placement, hiring and payroll for youth employees. Chief Martinez and Marta Rivera have been incredibly supportive of this approach since the beginning of their time with the cabinet, to strengthen Boston summer jobs program. And it's a model used by fellow summer jobs intermediary, John Hancock MLK Scholars which has proven to be successful. After much conversation with our Administration and Finance team, DYEE we will be moving forward with grant funds to organizations for summer 2021. This will require a new structural design for the department, who has never served in a grant funder role and will now focus on grant stewardship, where we will need to ensure compliance and adherence of funds that are administered and focus on the assessment and evaluation of youth employment and development.
- Youth Jobs Expansion: DYEE will be expanding the number of summer youth employment opportunities from roughly 4,000 annually to 5,000.
- The city made an investment in youth jobs during summer 2020, which allowed DYEE to provide nearly 3,800 jobs to youth and young adults.
- This expansion also comes after the City/DYEE was called on by the City Council to provide 1,000 youth jobs during the 2020-2021 academic school year (+400 jobs increase over DYEE's standing school-year hiring goal).

 - 46 interns hired to serve across all DYEE programs, Employment, Career Development, and Engagement & Outreach.
- Hired 938 youth who participated in the 2020-2021 SuccessLink school-year employment program. This is a 24% increase over the 2019-2020 record number of school-year youth employees hired (755).
 - Partnered with 130 nonprofits, community based organizations, and City of Boston agencies to offer skill development, career exploration and work readiness experiences to youth during the 2020 summer employment program.
- Record # of hires: The # of youth hired in summer 2020 and school-year 2020-2021 sets a record for the most young people hired in the past 8 years.
- Worked with the Office of Human Resources to engage in a DYEE Process Working Group (organized and led by OHR/Deloitte as part of the HR Transformation efforts) which included DYEE, OHR, and DoIT (BAIS). The goal of the working group is to establish a documented process and end-to-end work-flow, that includes 3 primary stages of the DYEE internal process: pre-employment, employment, and post-off boarding. The OHR/Deloitte team is continuing to work to finalize the documented process.
- DYEE has restructured the SuccessLink Employment Program to include two components, with the goal of strengthening the Boston summer jobs program.

The partner organization holds the responsibility for managing and administering the hiring and payroll process for youth employees
 - Revised MOA: Developed a revised MOA for SuccessLink Direct and Grant Partners for the summer 2021 program.

COVID-19 Recovery: From the onslaught of COVID, it was imperative to find a way to engage youth during the 2020 summer and 2020-2021 school-year, especially with the restrictions and changes to the academic school year for students. The education sector had to make a dramatic shift to remote learning, which presented many challenges to engaging youth. Canceling youth jobs was not an option for the City of Boston.

Previous research led by Alicia Modestino (Northeastern University), revealed evidence that Summer Youth Employment Programs (SYEP) improve youth outcomes by: boosting employment through job readiness, raising academic achievement through aspirations, and improving behavioral outcomes through community engagement.

With that we knew the detriment we would face by not having a youth jobs program and how it would impede on the progress of these outcomes for youth.

DYEE, the City of Boston (most notably Health & Human Service Cabinet (HHS), Office of Economic Development (OED), Office of Workforce Development (OWD) and Youth Jobs Intermediaries (ABCD, Boston PIC, John Hancock MLK Scholars, YEE and YOU) rallied together to provide a pretty successful summer where collectively over 6,000 jobs were offered to young people -- which is rather impressive, considering the circumstances.

The following are some key events and accomplishments during the COVID-19 recovery process for DYEE:

- Summer Jobs Intermediary Planning Meeting: Beginning in April 2020, weekly meetings were convened by the City of Boston (DYEE & OED) with summer job intermediaries to discuss the current reality of COVID-19 and the impact it would have on the summer jobs programs.
 - Questions that were considered: How could we move forward with youth jobs within COVID restrictions? How many of our partners (nonprofit and private sector) would still have the capacity and resources to be able to commit to hosting young people for summer jobs?
- Summer Jobs Partner Survey: In April 2020, the City of Boston (DYEE & OED) and summer jobs intermediaries released a Summer Jobs Partner Survey to capture how the pandemic is impacting the organization's capacity to support youth summer job opportunities. The survey was intended to capture information on what organizations' plans were for summer jobs 2020 and how summer jobs intermediaries can work to collectively identify alternative strategies and plan to engage and employ Boston's youth during the summer of 2020.
 - o 227 organizations responded from the private sector and nonprofit CBOs.
- Creation of Summer Jobs Tracks: Based on survey responses and conversations with intermediaries, there was an expected shortfall in summer job opportunities which consisted of an anticipated gap in jobs. Based on the projection, there were four tracks created with the goal of creating new job opportunities to fill the anticipated gap. The four tracks were as follows:
 - Track 1: Blue Shirts Program: youth jobs working on beautification projects across parks and public spaces.
 - Track 2: Peer -to- Peer Campaign: youth jobs working on a arts based (design, mural, youth voice, etc) public awareness campaign on COVID-19 safety.
 - Track 3: Virtual Engagement: youth jobs using remote platform and engagement in project based and experiential learning.
 - Track 4: Post-Secondary Education: youth jobs engaging in credit bearing post-secondary courses.
- Community Listening Sessions: The City of Boston (DYEE & OED) held community listening sessions for youth, parents and constituents interested in learning more about the City of Boston's Summer Jobs Contingency Plan.
- City Department Webinar: The City of Boston (DYEE & OED) held webinars sessions for City of Boston departments who were interested in learning more about the SuccessLink Summer Jobs Program and hosting youth during the summer.
- Virtual Hiring + Payroll Process (Design + Implementation): Due to the pandemic, DYEE had to rethink the youth hiring and payroll process that has largely been supported through in-person direct service. DYEE worked collectively with the Office of Human Resources, Auditing and Treasury departments to transition the standing youth onboarding and hiring process completely online. This allowed for accommodations for youth who were unable to access their social security cards due to SSA office closures and alternate documentation requirements to adhere to the City of Boston residency ordinance. Additionally, an online electronic timesheet process was designed to allow for youth employees to submit time virtually and have a supervisor and DYEE staff verification process. Lastly, DYEE decided in collaboration with Treasury that all youth checks would be mailed bi-weekly to the youths home address.
- City of Boston | Youth Employment Guidance During COVID-19: Guidelines to preparing and supporting summer youth employment opportunities in a safe and responsible manner. See guidance document here.

Willian T. Grant | Institutional Challenges Grant Recipient: As a Co-PI, DYEE in partnership with Northeastern University, was announced as a recipient of the William T. Grant | Institutional Challenge Grant - to advance the work of reducing inequality among young people through the Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP) by creating high quality workforce development experiences and preparing youth for educational and career pathways into adulthood.

- Start a conversation about what mentoring and case management for youth in Boston could look like at YEE.
