

Health and Wellness Support Grantees

The Health and Wellness Support grants total $205,000 and support organizations that provide a variety of health and wellness services for Boston's returning citizens.

Research shows that over half of all those returning from prison or jail struggle with mental health or substance use disorder. Access to culturally competent community mental health services is routinely one of the top needs requested by returning citizens.

This grant serves as a critical intervention to fill this service gap, especially at a time where clinical mental health resources are strained and returning citizens rely on community health services. See below for the full list of grantees and the type of services they provide.
